Organization of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation

Permanent International Secretariat (PERMIS)

Dear readers,

We are back with our news from the Black Sea region after a long summer break. We hope you enjoyed your holidays and are ready to successfully face the new working period.

Dear readers, though it was a break for us, unfortunately the wild-fires did not take one. Vast areas of woodlands, in other words our oxygen reserves, our biosphere within the Eurasian region, the Amazons, as well as in other parts of our planet were destroyed, surrendering to man-provoked fires and escalating climate change consequences. We as BSEC PERMIS, decided not to remain silent on this matter, but to start the 10th issue of our Newsletter with a short reference to a matter that concerns us all very much: Climate Change and its dire consequences.

As the Secretary General of BSEC PERMIS, I had the opportunity and privilege to attend the “United Nations Climate Action Summit 2019” that took place in New York.

“How dare you” were the words that marked the Summit: it took a young Swedish activist of only 16 years, Greta Thunberg, to initiate a massive awareness on the social media and organize the worldwide “Climate Change Strike” that united as one, hundreds of thousands of strikers. It is a teenager that reminded us how critical the situation is. These actions made us think once again that it is high time, dear readers, to listen to the young generation and come up urgently with solutions that will slow down the, probably, irreversible destruction of our planet. After all, we should not forget that the overall prosperity of our planet is directly linked to its environmental well-being and we owe the future generations a better world.

We as BSEC PERMIS, do our utmost to persuade our Member States to take urgent actions through the BSEC ad hoc groups of experts, such as those on “Massive Forest Fires” and “Floods and Torrents”. We are aware that we need more involvement and faster response before it is too late.

In this issue of our Newsletter, besides environmental issues, climate change and the UN SDGs, readers will find other information concerning the recent activities of our Organization. We wish you a pleasant reading.

Ambassador Michael B. Christides
Secretary General (BSEC PERMIS)

BSEC PERMIS was represented by its Executive Manager, Ms. Rositsa Stoeva, at the two events organized by the European Commission, Directorate General for Research and Innovation and held in Brussels, on 24-27 September 2019.

The European Research and Innovation Days (24-26 September) took place for the first time as a policy event of the European Commission, bringing together different stakeholders to debate and shape the future research and innovation landscape.

The main goal of the organizers was to engage stakeholders to jointly create and build the strategic priorities for the first four years of the Horizon Europe program, which will start operating in 2021 and is the successor to the current research and innovation framework program, Horizon 2020.

Cultural tourism plays a central role in connecting people, promoting intercultural dialog and spreading awareness and knowledge of the importance of cultural diversity. This was one of the highlights of the 2019 edition of the Advisory Forum where BSEC PERMIS was represented by its Executive Manager, Ms. Sandra Vujinovic.

The Forum was attended by representatives of the 47 Member States of the Council of Europe, representatives from the 38 certified Cultural Routes of the Council of Europe and candidate Cultural Routes, International Organizations, including EU, UNWTO, UNESCO, local and regional authorities, together with academics, business stakeholders and experts from the culture and tourism from around the Europe.

The program of the three day Forum included five plenary sessions reflecting different aspects of cultural tourism and cultural routes.

Taking into consideration that approximately 40% of international tourist arrivals are considered cultural tourists, the role of the Cultural Routes in harnessing the potential for cultural tourism to strengthen European heritage and traditions, as well as foster innovation and creativity in the cultural sector in favor of the tourist experience were also among the major subjects discussed during the Forum.

On the sidelines of the Forum, Ms. Vujinovic had several bilateral talks with various interlocutors concerning possible cooperation and asked for their support in realizing the intention of BSEC PERMIS to promote the establishment of “Cultural Routes” in the wider Black Sea region; further, she invited them to participate in the forthcoming Joint Meeting of the BSEC WGs on Culture and on Cooperation in Tourism, to be held on 26 November 2019, in view of the fact that, among other topics, cultural routes / cultural tourism projects will be also discussed.

International Conference on Energy and Climate Change

(Athens, 9-11 October 2019)

We should act with greater speed for decarbonizing the energy sector and for implementing the targets of the Paris Agreement!

This was the generally shared view at the Forum, held on the first day of the 12th Annual International Scientific Conference on “Energy and Climate Change”, initiated in 2008 under the auspices of BSEC by the Energy Policy and Development Centre (KEPA) of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens.

In his message the PERMIS Secretary General underlined BSEC concerns on Climate Change and its dire consequences. BSEC PERMIS representatives taking part in the Forum had the chance to inform participants on the activities of BSEC related bodies for the expansion of regional cooperation in Green Energy.

All participants shared the view that the green transformation of the economies had to be intensified and that the BSEC Member States should act with greater speed for decarbonizing their energy sector and for implementing the targets of the Paris Agreement. For doing so a favourable administrative and legal framework for investments in climate change should be established; last but not least, Member States should make greater use of BSEC and of its “BSEC Green Energy Network” for joint and coordinated action in these directions.

Can used fishing-nets turn into items such as picnic tables, benches, even clothes? The answer is yes! Turning old nets into raw material is not only a brilliant idea of waste management, but also helps us preserve our environment and protect marine faunae as the discarded fishing-nets will not end up in the oceans!

Towards this goal BSEC is preparing to cooperate with “Plastics-Europe”, the Turkish “National Packaging Waste Recycling Enterprise” (PAGEV) and the Municipality of Sariyer, Istanbul.

In a region that lags behind in the implementation of the UN SDGs, PERMIS is spearheading efforts together with the Romanian Government and the Black Sea Universities Network (BSUN) to catch up on this regard.

The International Conference on “Implementation of the UN 2030 SDGs in the Black Sea Region”, organized by the Department of Sustainable Development of the Romanian Government, in collaboration with the Black Sea Universities Network (BSUN), BSEC PERMIS and the Black Sea Chapter of the Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN), was held in Bucharest on 4-5 October 2019. The Conference, attended by over 90 participants, was conceived as a platform for free debates among governmental agencies, universities, research and development institutions and NGOs, in order to identify directions and policies to be followed for the effective implementation of SDGs in the Black Sea area.

The importance of the UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN Black Sea), as well as the need for a more determined action at the level of governments, both nationally and regionally, were also stressed; making effective use of the cooperation framework of BSEC and of the potential of BSUN in this regard can only enhance further the above efforts. The establishment at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki of an Observatory for collecting and managing relevant data in the Black Sea, envisaged to be financed by the Black Sea Project Promotion Facility (BSPPF), was also discussed in this respect.
